

Five reasons to read to your children

1. Research shows that when reading to children, their language, vocabulary and literacy skills are greatly improved; all are key elements that contribute to success in reading and writing development.
2. Reading to children conveys that reading is valued.
3. Reading to children provides quality time which creates special bonds, shared memories and connections.
4. Reading to children build knowledge, sparks curiosity, and takes them to other worlds.
5. Reading to children gives the message that reading is joyful which promotes being a “life-long” reader.

“Children fall in love with books because of the memories created when they snuggle up and read with someone they love”

Raising Readers.