Professional Learning

Have you seen the modules from the BC Campus Indigenization Project? BC Campus states that “one of the goals of the Indigenization project was to co-create open educational resources that support faculty and staff with the incorporation of Indigenous epistemologies into professional practice, enabling post-secondary institutions to continue to build the structures and processes by which Indigenous students experience their post-secondary education in resonance with their own lives, worldviews, and ambitions” reference. Although the guides were written with post secondary education as the focus, what can K-12 education systems learn from these modules? The modules include: Foundations, Teachers and Instructors, Front Line Staff, Advisors and Student Services, Leaders and Administrators, Curriculum Developers and a Researcher Module is under development. You can access all the guides here.
